

Country Self-Assessment for the African Peer Review Mechanism

The Questionnaire is divided into four major sections corresponding to the four focus areas in the "Objectives, Standards, Criteria and Indicators for the APRM" document

- a) Democracy and Good Political Governance
- b) Economic Governance and Management
- c) Corporate Governance
- d) Socio-economic Development

In each focus area, the overall objective of the section is defined, followed by the components in terms of which country action with regard to the overall goal will be assessed:

Objectives. The objectives define the essential elements of the overall goal that must be achieved in a measurable way.

Standards and Codes. The Standards and Codes are those that have been approved by African countries, individually or collectively, with regard to 'how' they govern themselves and manage their societies, economies and socio-economic development. Kindly note that the standards and codes are provided for guidance and reference. Countries will not be marked against whether they adhere to these or not, the purpose being to ascertain their familiarity with these standards and codes and the extent of their application.

Questions. The questions serve to focus on what the country has done with regard to the objectives and the codes, how it does it and with what results.

Indicators. The indicators are the type of evidence that is expected in the responses of countries. The indicators serve to highlight aspects of the objective, standard or code that are generally recognised as measures of performance and results.

FOREWORD

The New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD) is the Strategic Policy Framework and Socio-economic Development Programme of the African Union (AU). The vision of NEPAD is "to eradicate poverty and to place countries, individually and collectively, on a path of sustainable growth and development, and at the same time to participate actively in the world economy and body politic". This calls for improved governance of all entities whether public or private as well as action plans outlining realistic sustainable development targets, reinforcing successful best practices, identifying deficiencies and assessing the needs for capacity building in all African Countries.

In an effort to enhance the quality of governance in Africa, the 6th Summit of the Heads of State and Government Implementation Committee (HSGIC) held on 9th March 2003 adopted the Memorandum of Understanding on the African Peer Review Mechanism (APRM) and the Declaration on Democracy, Political, Economic and Corporate Governance. This latter document, which had also been endorsed by the inaugural Summit of the African Union (AU) held in Durban in July 2002, contains prioritised and approved codes and standards in four focus areas: Democracy and Good Political Governance; Economic Governance and Management; Socio-Economic Development; and Corporate Governance. The HSGIC also adopted documents that outline the core principles, processes and objectives of the APRM including the APRM Base Document, the APRM Organisation and Processes Document, and the document on Objectives, Standards, Criteria and Indicators for the APRM.

The APRM therefore is a self-monitoring mechanism voluntarily acceded to by Member States of the AU with the aim of fostering the adoption of policies, standards and practices that will lead to political stability, high economic growth, sustainable development and accelerated regional and economic integration. It underscores the commitment to implement the codes and standards contained in the Declaration on Democracy, Political, Economic and Corporate Governance.

The APRM is open to all member states of the AU of which sixteen members have voluntarily acceded at present including Algeria, Burkina Faso, Cameroon, Republic of Congo, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ghana, Kenya, Mali, Mauritius, Mozambique, Nigeria, Rwanda, Senegal, Republic of South Africa and Uganda. A number of other countries have also indicated intention to join and await the finalization of the formal prerequisites.

The overall responsibility of the APRM is vested in the Committee of Participating Heads of State and Government of the Member States of the APRM (APR Forum]. The APR Forum held its inaugural meeting in Kigali on the 13th of February 2004 and elected President Olesugun Obasanjo of Nigeria as Chairperson.

A Panel of Eminent Persons [APR Panel] appointed by the Heads of State and Government oversees the conduct of the APRM process and ensures its integrity. The composition of the APR Panel is the following: Mrs Marie Angeliqe Savane (Senegal), Chairperson; Prof. Adebayo Adedeji (Nigeria for West Africa); Ambassador Bethuel Kiplagat [Kenya representing East Africa]; Dr. Graca Machel [Mozambique for Southern Africa]; Mourad Medelci [Algeria for North Africa]; Dr. Dorothy Njeuma [Cameroon for Central Africa]; and Dr. Chris Stals (Republic of South Africa also for Southern Africa region].

The APRM Secretariat provides the secretarial, technical, coordinating and administrative support services for the APRM.

To facilitate the implementation of the APRM and to ensure the integrity of the process, the APR Panel was called upon to develop tools, instruments, codes of conduct and guidelines to govern the country review process. In this regard, the APR Panel with the assistance of the APR Secretariat have developed the following documents: the Rules and Procedures of the APR Panel and Secretariat; the Guidelines for Countries to Prepare for and to Participate in the APRM; the Code of Conduct of the APR Country Review Teams; a draft MOU to be signed with participating countries; and a draft MOU to be signed with partner institutions.

The APR Panel also requested that steps be taken to further refine the Objectives, Standards, Criteria and Indicators of the APRM so as to ensure their technical soundness and make them appropriate to the context of participating countries in all the four focus areas of the APRM. In responding to this mandate, wide consultations were undertaken with diverse stakeholders and Institutions, both regional and International working on relevant issues to develop a questionnaire spelling out detailed criteria and indicators for assessment. Gratitude must be extended to all who participated including the relevant organs of the African Union, the African Development Bank, the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa, Africa Bureau of the United Nations Development Programme, the World Bank, the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development, key regional resource institutions, individual experts and civil society including women, trade unions, academicians and the media.

It is therefore a momentous juncture for the APR Panel to present this questionnaire. It must be emphasized that the main purpose of the questionnaire is to assist countries to undertake their self assessment and subsequently draft their Preliminary Programme of Action.

The questionnaire is also intended to promote national dialogue on development issues and to facilitate the evaluation of countries on the basis of the realities expressed by all stakeholders. It is therefore important that there be broad based representation at the National structure coordinating the APR Process as well as wide dissemination of the questionnaire and active participation of all stakeholders in providing responses to the questionnaire.

Taking into account possible capacity constraints in participating in the APRM and in particular with regard to responding to the questionnaire, the APR Panel will lead a support mission to each country prior to the commencement of the self assessment process to explain the philosophy, rules and processes of the APRM and the objectives and use of the questionnaire.

There shall also be Workshops at intervals during the continental review process to share experiences on the review process which may lead to further refinement of the assessment tools including the questionnaire.

It is anticipated that given the differences of levels of development, participating countries would achieve the goals, objectives, standards and codes of the Questionnaire at various times according to the context and historical development of each country.

On behalf of the Heads of State and Government who appointed us, the APR Panel of Eminent Persons and all who have been involved in this process to date, I thank all stakeholders participating in the APRM for their contribution to this renewed vision for Africa.

Yours sincerely,

Marie-Angelique Savané

Chairperson of the Africa Peer Review Panel of Eminent Persons

1. BACKGROUND AND PROCESS OF THE APRM

1.1. Introduction

- 1.1.1. The African Peer Review Mechanism (“APRM”) foundation base document [AHG/235 (XXXVIII) Annex 2] defines the APRM as: “an instrument voluntarily acceded to by Member States of the African Union as an African self-monitoring mechanism.”
- 1.1.2. The primary purpose of the APRM is: “to foster the adoption of policies, standards and practices that lead to political stability, high economic growth, sustainable development and accelerated sub-regional and continental economic integration through sharing of experiences and reinforcement of successful and best practice, including identifying deficiencies and assessing the needs for capacity building.”
- 1.1.3. To ensure that the primary purpose is realised, the participating states have committed themselves to adopting appropriate laws, policies and standards, as well as building the necessary human and institutional capacity. They have also committed themselves to adopting specific objectives, standards, criteria and indicators for assessing and monitoring progress in key areas on a regular basis in accordance with the APRM base document and the Declaration on Democracy, Political, Economic and Corporate Governance, as endorsed by the inaugural Summit of the African Union (AU) in Durban, South Africa in July 2002 [AHG/235 (XXXVIII) Annex 1].
- 1.1.4. The overarching goal of the APRM is for all participating countries to accelerate their progress towards adopting and implementing the priorities and programmes of the New Partnership for Africa’s Development (“NEPAD”), achieving the mutually agreed objectives and compliance with best practice in respect of each of the areas of governance and development. This can only be achieved through the sustained efforts of the country itself, involving all stakeholders. It requires that each country carefully assess its own situation through a broad participatory process led by the government that results in a Programme of Action with time bound objectives to guide all stakeholders in the actions required by government, private sector and civil society to achieve the country's vision.

- 1.1.5. However, given the differences of historical context and stages of development, countries will start from different base lines and will not be expected to reach their highest level of performance at the same time. The rate of progress will also depend critically on the level of commitment and political will of each country to take deliberate steps to realise its vision.

1.2. The APR Process

- 1.2.1. The APR process will be conducted under the leadership of the APR Panel and the technical support of the APR Secretariat. It consists of five stages that are defined in the APRM Base Document and discussed in detail in the Guidelines for Countries to Prepare for and to Participate in the APRM.

Stage One is the preparatory process both at the level of the APR Secretariat and the national level. During this stage, the APR Secretariat will send a questionnaire to all participating countries on the basis of the mutually agreed Objectives Standards, Criteria and Indicators. The country will develop a self assessment on the basis of the questionnaire. The country is also expected to formulate a Preliminary programme of action based on existing policies, programmes and projects. Upon receiving the self assessment and the preliminary programme of action, the APR Secretariat which during this time has developed a Background document on the country, through research and gathering information relevant to the country will prepare an Issue paper that will guide the country in the review process. If on the basis of all available data the APR Secretariat determines that the issues require further in-depth assessment analysis, it will make arrangements for a competent partner institution to conduct the assessment. Upon completion of the technical assessment, the assessment report is sent to the APR Secretariat and the APR Panel.

Stage Two marks the visit of the APR Team to the country concerned with a view to holding extensive consultations with all stakeholders.

Stage Three is the drafting of the report by the APR Team. The report is prepared on the basis of the Background document and the Issue Paper prepared by the APR Secretariat, and the information provided in the country during the extensive consultations held with stakeholders.

In Stage Four, the APR Team's report is submitted to the APR Secretariat and APR Panel. After deliberation by the APR Panel, the report is then submitted to the APR Forum for consideration and formulation of actions deemed necessary in accordance with the mandate of the APR Forum.

Stage Five is the final stage of the APR Process. It involves making public the report and related actions. Six months after consideration of the report by the APR Forum, the report will be formally and publicly tabled in key regional and sub-regional structures.

- 1.2.2. Allowance has also been made for a preliminary phase known as Country Support Mission. The primary purpose of the country support missions is to: ensure a common understanding of the philosophy, rules and processes of the APRM; and on the basis of the self-assessed needs of the Participating Country, plan and provide support to the Participating Countries in aspects of the national processes where they signal a need for such support.

2. GUIDELINES FOR THE COMPLETION OF THE QUESTIONNAIRE

2.1. Procedure for Completing the Questionnaire

- 2.1.1. It is hoped that prior to receiving the questionnaire each country would have established a national focal point comprised of representatives of all stakeholders to coordinate the APRM process.
- 2.1.2. It is expected that the APR Focal Point in each Participating Country will draw up a list of the stakeholders (government, private sector, civil society) that would participate in responding to the Questionnaire. It would then distribute the entire Questionnaire to all stakeholders through their representatives in the Focal Point. The APR Focal Point would also provide the APR Secretariat with a list of all the recipients of the Questionnaire.
- 2.1.3. All stakeholders would be invited to concentrate on the Section in the Questionnaire corresponding to their specialisation, expertise, mandate or mission, but to feel free to respond to any question in the other sections in which they desire to input. All stakeholders would be required to provide available documentation and specific references for the responses that they furnish so that the documentation of the sources of the country's self-assessment can be as complete as possible in order to validate or support the responses.
- 2.1.4. The stakeholders would be given a time frame within which to complete and return the Questionnaires along with an overall report on their assessment and available documentation to the national APR Focal point.
- 2.1.5. The APR Focal Point would then collate the responses, and consult with stakeholders to build a consensus response. It would also use the responses and the available assessment reports to compile the country's Self-Assessment Report, based on the Questionnaire responses and other research. It would ensure that there are detailed references to the sections of the Self-assessment Report in which a question is answered and the indicators are defined more fully.

- 2.1.6. To facilitate consistency and ease of reference, if the electronic mode of response is used, the Questionnaire should be completed by the respondents entering their responses or explanations under the particular question in the Questionnaire using this document as the basis for formulating your response. The respondents are not limited in the scope of their answers and are encouraged to provide supplementary and/or supporting material that will elaborate upon their responses (see 2.1.8 below).
- 2.1.7. However, taking into account possible capacity constraints in providing electronic responses by all stakeholders, a similar questionnaire with provision for summary responses completed by hand has been prepared by the Secretariat and will be forwarded to the APR Focal point for distribution to stakeholders wishing to provide written responses.
- 2.1.8. Where applicable, the respondents may be required to attach supporting documentation to the Questionnaire. In this case, the external documentation should be indexed by reference to the particular question. The respondents are at liberty to provide a website reference, where the information contained in the document sought to be attached is obtainable electronically.

2.2. Structure of Notes on the Questionnaire

- 2.2.1. Every effort has been made to make the Questionnaire as respondent-friendly as possible. The Questionnaire contains explanatory notes at several levels to facilitate the task of the respondents.
- 2.2.2. At the start of each focus area, there are notes on that particular section and any peculiarities that respondents need to take into account in responding to the questions.
- 2.2.3. At the start of each objective there are brief notes to remind respondents on what is required, as well as of the flexibility of the content with regard to both questions and indicators to allow respondents to take into account the peculiarities of their own situation.

- 2.2.4. At the level of the questions and indicators there are explanatory notes with regard to specific indicators that need verification.
- 2.2.5. Respondents completing the Questionnaire are encouraged to liaise with the APR Focal Point from whom they can obtain clarity on how to complete the Questionnaire or with respect to any of the questions contained in the Questionnaire. The contact details for the APR Focal Point are contained on the cover sheet of the Questionnaire.

2.3. Cross-cutting Issues

2.3.1. Given NEPAD's holistic approach to development, the focus areas in the four Sections cannot be treated entirely separately. These areas are recognised as interconnected and requiring an integrated or holistic response on the part of all partners in society and development. This interconnectedness has many strands, but for the purposes of the APR the following cross-cutting issues have been identified as requiring systematic attention across all areas of the Questionnaire:

- Poverty eradication
- Gender balance
- Decentralisation
- Country capacities to participate in the APRM
- Access to and dissemination of information
- Corruption
- Broad-based participation

- Sustainability in both financial, social and environmental issues

2.3.2. Questions and indicators on these cross-cutting dimensions are systematically built into every Section of the Questionnaire.

2.3.3. It is suggested that countries ensure that all participating stakeholders are aware of these cross-cutting issues, as well as others that might be of special significance within the context of the country, and that they be invited to identify other cross-cutting issues they consider important from the perspective of the country.

2.3.4. Thus, the intention is that countries would mainstream these cross-cutting issues in all areas by taking these dimensions into account in their responses, providing specific indicators wherever available.

2.4. Codes and Standards

2.4.1. In order to ascertain the progress made by individual countries towards achieving the objectives of each focus area, the participating countries in the APRM have approved a number of codes, standards and internationally recognised benchmarks.

2.4.2. Although some of these benchmarks may cut across the four focus areas, those applicable to each focus area are listed at the beginning of every Section.

2.4.3. As a result, the first question in every Section is with regards to the compliance of the country to the agreed codes and standards.

SECTION 1

DEMOCRACY AND GOOD POLITICAL GOVERNANCE

Definition

Good governance means creating well-functioning and accountable institutions - political, judicial and administrative - which citizens regard as legitimate, in which they participate in decisions that affect their daily lives and by which they are empowered (Kofi A. Annan, Partnerships for a Global Community (1998).

Democracy and good political governance constitute an important prerequisite for successful economic, corporate and socio-economic governance, touching as they do on the fundamental rights of the citizenry (both individuals and groups), the accountability of government to the governed, and the relative stability of the polity.

A cardinal part of the NEPAD declaration is an undertaking from the participating Heads of State and Government of the member states of the AU to work with renewed determination towards:

- The rule of law;
- The equality of all before the law and the liberty of the individual;
- Individual and collective freedoms, including the right to form and join political parties and trade unions, in conformity with the Constitution;
- Equality of opportunity for all;
- The inalienable right of the individual to participate by means of free, credible and democratic political processes in periodically electing their leaders for a fixed term of office;
- Adherence to the doctrine of separation of powers including the protection of the independence of the judiciary and of effective parliaments.

1. INTRODUCTION

This section of the questionnaire addresses the main objective of the APRM, which is the promotion of democracy and good political governance as a basis for the reduction of poverty and the attainment of sustainable development.

In this regard, questions have been developed for measuring popular participation and political equality - the key principles of a democratic society. These questions are grouped under several broad categories:

1.1. A Guaranteed Framework of Equal Citizen Rights

This category of concerns includes issues such as access to justice, respect for the rule of law, the freedoms of expression, association and assembly, as well as the basic economic and social rights to enable citizens to exercise these freedoms effectively. These issues are to be addressed in terms of objectives such as:

- 1.1.1. Preventing and reducing intra- and inter-state conflicts with particular attention to the extent to which the country under review strives to sustain peace and security within its borders and to contribute to peace and stability in its neighbourhood. In this connection, the existence of effective early warning systems, whether formal or informal, in a country or at the regional level is considered as an indicator (Objective 1);
- 1.1.2. Constitutional democracy and the rule of law are treated as two separate but related sub-issues. On the one hand constitutional democracy refers to constitutionally-established provisions and institutions which enable citizens to enjoy their rights of freedom of membership of political associations of their choosing and the free participation of these political groups and other associations in open political competition. Constitutional democracy is also empowering people at the grassroots level through the decentralisation mechanism that allows local communities to participate in decision-making affecting their destiny. On the other hand, the rule of law and the supremacy of the Constitution ensure that all individuals are subject to and treated equally according to the law, and that no one is exposed to arbitrary treatment by the state. The rule of law also means that all authorities, including armed forces and security forces must obey the law. Furthermore, the legislative Acts of government should be enacted in conformity with the Constitution which is both the supreme law at the domestic level and the foundation on which the exercise of all powers within the state is based (Objective 2).

- 1.1.3. The promotion of economic, social, cultural, civil and political liberties ensures that the integrity and rights of people are respected by the state which should also take necessary steps to protect citizens' rights from violation either by its agents and/or a third party. In this connection, the institutionalisation of a system of due process involving competent judges who are able to apply the law independent of outside pressures and with impartiality is critical. Indicators related to this objective are underpinned by the principle of ensuring that the will of the people constitutes the basis of authority of the government. The popular will is measured, inter alia, through the right of citizens to participate directly and freely in the election of representatives and the equality of access to public service. Other indicators that are relevant for consideration include the capacity of the state to provide people with an adequate standard of living, education, housing and health care (Objective 3).
- 1.1.4. Upholding the separation of powers, including the protection of the independence of the judiciary and the fostering of an autonomous and effective parliament are also critical issues in the governance system. This objective ensures the establishment of a functioning system of separation of powers among the Judiciary, the Legislature and the Executive. The separation of power evaluates the system of checks and balances within the branches of government. An independent Judiciary gives confidence to citizens - individual, group, and corporate - that their rights will be protected by the courts; it also helps to foster the kind of enabling environment that can promote economic growth and the reduction of poverty. An independent parliament that is alive to its oversight responsibilities is critical to the successful reduction of public sector corruption and the abuse of power by the Executive (Objective 4).

1.2. Institutions of Representative and Accountable Government

This encompasses the regular organisation of free and fair elections as one of the principal means for ensuring popular participation in the constitution of the government and the monitoring of its performance. It also touches on the procedures that are designed to ensure the continuous accountability of officials, elected as well as non-elected, to the public. The questions that have been included in the questionnaire on this issue address two broad objectives:

- 1.2.1. Ensuring that public office holders and civil servants are accountable, efficient and effective. The indicators under this objective are meant to establish the quality of service delivery and ensure the accountability of public officials to the public. Good public service delivery enables citizens to express their views on the performance of the government, and to hold civil servants accountable for their actions (objective 5).
- 1.2.2. Fighting corruption in the political sphere. Corruption misrepresents the real state of a country's economy and therefore is a disincentive for attracting much needed investment. Under this objective an attempt is made to assess the level of corruption in the country and the mechanisms that have been put in place to contain such practices (Objective 6).

1.3. A Vibrant Civil Society

This includes the existence of free and pluralistic media and vibrant civil society organisations. It also touches upon the system of public consultation for encouraging popular participation in the political process, involving marginalised groups in decision-making, eliciting governmental responsiveness to public opinion, and improving public service delivery. Close attention will be paid to the extent to which women, children and other marginalised groups such as internally displaced persons and refugees are integrated into the consultative process. Among some of the key objectives for which questions have been formulated are:

- 1.3.1. The promotion and protection of the rights of women and the mainstreaming of gender equality. The concern here is to ensure that women have a meaningful status in the country and to explore the frameworks necessary to further deepen their participation - political, economic, cultural and social. The indicators also seek to encourage governments to provide evidence of women's empowerment in the domain of access to and control of productive resources and services, as well as their role in decision-making, including conflict prevention and resolution. Issues pertaining to women's rights which are not covered under this objective are treated exhaustively in the economic governance and socio-economic development sections of the questionnaire (Objective 7).
- 1.3.2. The promotion and protection of the rights of the child and young persons. This objective aims to address the issues of children in armed conflict, child slavery, other abuses that prevent children from realising their full potential and rehabilitation mechanisms put in place (Objective 8).
- 1.3.3. The promotion and protection of the rights of vulnerable groups, including internally displaced persons and refugees. The failure to protect vulnerable groups represents an under-utilisation of a country's capacities through the exclusion of a part of the society. The questions also address the rights of displaced persons and refugees through their integration into the existing communities, thus contributing to regional stability (Objective 9).

Given the number of standards and codes that define the objectives under this Section, it is pertinent that respondents include a list enumerating which of the standards or codes the country has signed, ratified or is presently complying with. Thereafter, respondents may go ahead to elaborate on the first question, providing as much evidence as is possible.

Since indicators in Democracy and Political Governance are not amenable to quantitative measurement, the focus is on qualitative assessment. The indicators that follow are not intended to be exhaustive. You may want to elaborate on your answers and add key indicators, which relate to your country but which are not captured by the suggested indicators.

Kindly note that if your country has adopted and implemented any international standards that are not listed in the questionnaire, you are at liberty to provide relevant information concerning the date of adoption, the institutional arrangements in place, and the human and financial capacity for implementation.

SECTION 2

ECONOMIC GOVERNANCE AND MANAGEMENT

Definition

In the Declaration on Democracy, Political and Economic Governance, African countries recognise that "good economic governance including transparency in financial management are all essential prerequisites for promoting economic growth and reducing poverty".

It is the firm belief of the participating Heads of State and Government of the member states of the AU that the promotion of market efficiency, control of wasteful spending, consolidation of democracy and the encouragement of private financial flows are critical aspects of the quest to reduce poverty and enhance sustainable development on the continent.

1. INTRODUCTION

The African crisis is generally viewed as a political crisis with economic consequences. It should, however, be acknowledged that the economic disorder of African countries over the past decades may have aggravated the political turmoil and further deteriorated the living conditions of large segments of African populations.

The economic disorder of Africa has both internal and external dimensions. These include, among others: inefficient revenue mobilisation and aid dependency; weak central banks and inefficient financial sectors; non-transparent budgetary procedures and ineffective oversight by parliamentary and other auditing bodies; unfriendly environment for private investments, characterised by pervasive corruption, poor economic infrastructures, and unpredictable public administrations.

The first objective of Public Economic and Financial Management is to promote macro-economic stability, which is considered as a necessary condition for sustainable development. However, macro-economic stability is not sufficient to ensure continuous improvement in the living conditions of the people. On the other hand, economic and financial management cannot promote sustainable development, unless the economic policies pursued are transparent and credible inside and outside the country. To meet this diversity of concerns, the Questionnaire on Economic Governance and Management revolves around the following objectives:

- Promote macro-economic policies that support sustainable development;
- Implement transparent, predictable and credible government economic policies;
- Promote sound public finance management;
- Fight corruption and money laundering;
- Accelerate regional integration by participating in the harmonisation of monetary, trade and investment policies among the participating states.

To track progress made toward achieving these objectives, the participating countries in the APRM have approved a number of internationally recognized codes and standards including among others: Codes of Good Practices on Transparency in Monetary and Financial Policies; Code of Good Practices on Fiscal Transparency; Best Practices for Budget Transparency; Guidelines for Public Debt Management and Core Principles for Effective Banking Supervision.

As a result, the first item in the Questionnaire is the question regarding the compliance of the country with the agreed codes and standards. Thereafter, substantive questions are raised as to what measures are taken by the country to achieve the above listed 5 objectives, and what is the impact of these measures. Key questions address issues such as:

- The soundness of the macro-economic policies;
- Sector policies to promote sustainable development;
- Resource mobilization;
- Vulnerability to internal and external shocks;
- Effectiveness and transparency of public administrations;
- Soundness of public finance management;
- Institutional capacity;
- Fiscal decentralization;
- Measures to fight corruption and money laundering, and impact;
- Measures for regional integration and monetary cooperation.

A number of basic and factual indicators are proposed to help answer each of the questions set out in this Section. In some cases the assessment is conducted only against quantitative indicators. For example, the soundness of the macro-economic policies is assessed against quantitative indicators, such as: average inflation rate over the past 5 years; real Gross Domestic Product growth over the past 5 years; the Debt service ratio; fiscal deficit. In other cases, the questionnaire only offers qualitative indicators to capture the complexity of the issues, including the assessment for instance of the effectiveness and transparency of public administrations, the soundness of public finance management, and the effectiveness of fiscal decentralisation.

However, in a number of cases, including sectoral policies and resource mobilisation, the questionnaire is designed in such a manner that it contains both quantitative and qualitative indicators. For instance, the quality of the country's sectoral policies is assessed against not only real output per sector and growth in employment per sector over the past 5 years, but also on the ground of measures taken to promote gender equality, social and environmental sustainability, as well as job creation.

Kindly answer each question in terms of the indicators proposed. Additional indicators considered appropriate may be used. Kindly document the data sources for verifying your answers. For quantitative indicators, please enter the value of the indicator. For qualitative indicators please provide a brief, clear summary statement. For both, kindly provide any elaboration considered necessary and references to the data sources.

Please answer the first question with respect to the standards and codes listed. Please feel free to add standards or codes that are not included herein as the list is not exhaustive.

SECTION 3

CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

Definition

Corporate Governance is a system by which corporations are directed, controlled and held to account. It embraces all forms of enterprise in the private and public sector.

Good corporate governance provides a level of disclosure and transparency regarding the conduct of corporations, their boards and directors that enables the supervision of their accountability while ensuring that: they comply with their legal obligations and remissions; are accountable to shareholders and responsible to stakeholders including employees, suppliers, creditors, customers and communities; and act responsibly regarding the environment.

Good Corporate Governance has seven distinguishing characteristics: discipline, transparency, independence, accountability, responsibility, fairness and social responsibility. These traits are important because they increase investor confidence, making it easier for corporations to raise equity capital and finance investment. Africa is a continent that has historically attracted very little investment, it is hoped that improved corporate governance on the continent especially when done in the context of wider economic and systemic governance will enhance the confidence of investors both domestic and foreign. Furthermore, most economies in Africa rely on agriculture, mining and other extractive industries that have adverse effects on the environment. In addition abject poverty, hunger and the scourge of pandemics such as HIV/AIDS, Malaria and Tuberculosis afflict many of our communities. What this means is that the concepts of corporate citizenship and corporate social responsibility have to be complied with to ensure that corporations manage the environment sustainably and impact positively on the communities within which they operate.

1. INTRODUCTION

The vision of NEPAD is to eradicate poverty and place African countries individually and collectively on the path to sustainable growth and development. This calls for sustainable production and creation of wealth through well-governed and competitive entities whether they are public or private enterprises. In an effort to enhance the quality of good corporate governance in corporations in Africa, Heads of State and Government of the participating states adopted five broad objectives and a number of codes and standards to guide Corporate Governance reform in Africa:

1.1. Promoting an Enabling Environment and Effective Regulatory Framework for Economic Activities

This objective focuses on the legal and administrative measures that are in place to facilitate economic activities. Primary analysis under this objective aims to assess the effectiveness of both government authorities (particularly in the banking, insurance and securities market) and self regulatory authorities (including any stock exchange, professional and trade associations) in regulation, monitoring and supervision.

Discussions under this objective to date have however often highlighted issues relating to peace and security, efficiency of the judiciary and prosecuting authorities including the police, infrastructural and human resource development as impacting on the provision of an enabling environment for economic activities. As pointed out earlier, there are four focus areas of the APRM including Democracy and Political Governance and Socio-economic Development that deal with these issues in-depth. We do however in this section flag and appreciate related issues that are primary to the performance of business activities for example: independence, capacity and efficiency of the judiciary in enforcing commercial law; efficient communication systems and access to information; and availability of skilled professionals in areas relevant to good corporate governance e.g. accountants and auditors, lawyers, company secretaries, etc.

1.2. Ensuring that Corporations Act as Good Corporate Citizens with regard to Human Rights, Social Responsibility and Environmental Sustainability

This objective addresses three main issues: human rights including adherence to labour obligations, social responsibility, and matters relating to the environment.

Some of the specific issues covered include: employee rights, provision of safe working environment and fair wages; the degree of corporations' responsiveness to community needs including focus on issues such as health (HIV/AIDS, Malaria, Tuberculosis (TB), Yellow Fever), education and skills development; and responsible behaviour with regard to the environment including environmental rehabilitation projects, environmental impact assessments, recycling and use of clean technology.

1.3. Promoting Adoption of Codes of Good Business Ethics in Achieving the Objectives of the Corporation

The King II Report has defined business ethics as the “principles, norms and standards that guide an organisation’s conduct of its activities, internal relations and interactions with external stakeholders.” Under this objective, self-regulation and the development of voluntary codes on business ethics by the public and private sector, the observance and enforcement of these codes by the concerned bodies, is some of the indicative criteria sought.

Other issues that are considered under this objective include mechanisms for sanctioning ethics violators and their effectiveness. Another important issue that has been raised relates to access to information on corporations in the private and public sectors including the independence and freedom of the media and the quality of financial and investigative journalism and other features that serve to look after the so-called “public interest”.

1.4. Ensuring that Corporations treat all their Stakeholders including Shareholders, Employees, Communities and Suppliers fairly

This objective addresses the corporate governance concepts of accountability to shareholders and responsibility to stakeholders. Questions cover shareholder rights including the right to convey or transfer shares, obtain relevant information on the corporation on a timely and regular basis, participate and vote in general shareholder meetings, elect members of the board and share in the profits of the corporation, and mechanisms for shareholders to seek redress in case of violation of their rights. While some of these issues may not always be directly relevant to public sector corporations, issues of public accountability for efficient and economic services by public utilities are critical and relevant considerations as well in the context in which these issues should be considered.

The objective also focuses on legislation or codes of conduct governing the direct relationship between stakeholders and corporations for example, trade unions, consumer legislation, creditors rights and bankruptcy laws and the level of compliance with, and enforcement of, such legislation and codes; interactions between stakeholders and corporations; access to information; and rights of participation by stakeholders in relevant fora.

Examples of conduct that may show a corporation's treatment and relations with its stakeholders include product recalls, false advertising, price fixing and anti-trust suits, labour strikes and community protests, number, level and frequency of corporate bankruptcies, etc.

1.5. Providing for Accountability of Corporations, Directors and Officers

This objective relates to the effectiveness of the corporate governance framework regulating disclosure requirements, the enforcement thereof and the adequacy of remedies for breach. Examples of relevant issues include auditing, accounting and filing requirements in accordance with internationally accepted requirements and standards, timely and cost effective access to corporate financial information, and training programmes for directors and officers.

At the beginning of this Section, the Codes and Standards, which were adopted by the Heads of State and Government as suggestive guides for corporate governance reform in Africa, have been listed. Below these codes are questions relating to the codes. These questions seek to assess not only the level of adoption of international standards and codes but also the extent to which universal codes governing corporate behaviour have been developed, implemented and enforced.

Please provide in response to this question pertinent information including the steps the country has taken to implement or comply with the codes (legislative, policy and institutions to support application of such codes) and the challenges in achieving results in light of the specific objectives. Any codes or standards that are not mentioned but are applicable to the country's context with respect to the objective including those developed at national level should also be provided.

Kindly answer each question in terms of the indicators proposed. Additional indicators considered appropriate may be used. Kindly document the data sources for verifying your answers.

SECTION 4

SOCIO-ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Definition

Socio-economic development in the light of the NEPAD declaration implies the continuous improvement in the well being and in the standard of living of the people.

The socio-economic development section is intended to highlight efforts and progress made in designing appropriate policies and delivery mechanisms in key social development areas.

Questions are asked on endeavours undertaken by all stakeholders in the country to achieve the socio-economic objectives which are as follows:

- Promote self reliance and build capacity for self sustaining development.
- Accelerate socio-economic objectives to achieve sustainable development and poverty eradication.
- Strengthen policies, delivery mechanisms and outputs in key social development areas including education for all, combating HIV/AIDS and other communicable diseases.
- Ensuring affordable access to water, energy, finance (including microfinance), markets and ICT to all citizens, especially the poor.
- Progress towards gender equality, particularly equal access to education for girls at all levels.
- Encourage broad based participation in development by all stakeholders at all levels.

1. INTRODUCTION

The six socio-economic objectives of the NEPAD declaration deal with issues such as self-reliance in development and accelerated socio-economic development to eradicate poverty. This is in addition to the need to put in place policies and delivery mechanisms in key social development areas, ensuring affordable access to public goods and services, progress towards gender equality and participation in development by all stakeholders.

The issue of self-reliance in development implies ownership and leadership, as well as broad and deep participation by all sectors of society and anchoring the development of the country on its resources and resourcefulness of its people. Ownership and leadership of the development process include issues such as development priorities, origins of the resources mobilised for the implementation of the development programmes and origins of the private investments.

The need to accelerate socio-economic development is vital to the country to address poverty. Poverty eradication may require relief actions to reduce the suffering of the poor and increase their access to social services. In this case, there is a need to know what is being accomplished to ease the access of the poor to food, shelter, health services, education, etc. It also requires actions to increase their capacity to generate income by themselves in order to face their needs.

For the same reason, there is also the need to strengthen policies, delivery mechanisms and outputs in key social development areas. Areas of concern include education, health, HIV/AIDS, child status, gender equity, protection of vulnerable groups, etc. Over the past two decades indeed, social sectors have suffered from economic reforms. This has contributed to the worsening of most social indicators, including declining school enrolment rates, increase in under-five mortality rates, increase in HIV/AIDS prevalence rates, increasing child labour, declining immunisation coverage, increase of child malnutrition rates, etc. Improvement in social indicators is not only a development objective on its own, but also a key impetus for accelerating the development process in the long-term. The reversal of the abovementioned trends is required for sustainable development to be achieved.

Efforts have to be enhanced to ensure affordable access to water, sanitation, energy, micro-finance, markets and ICT to all, especially to rural poor so as to enhance the means of livelihood and reduce poverty. Progress towards gender equality is also required, particularly equal access to education for girls and boys at all levels. Promoting gender equality requires change in legal and customary laws as well as measures to eradicate inequalities due to past policies and social practices. Land ownership, schooling and employment are some of the areas where gender inequalities are frequent.

In order to achieve all the socio-economic development objectives, broad-based participation by all stakeholders at all levels is necessary.

For each of these objectives, questions are raised and indicators meant to address underlying social dynamics and resulting socio-economic impacts on the citizen taking into account gender, scope, inclusiveness and sustainability are provided. The questions and indicators are meant to bring out qualitative and quantitative responses which will help measure or determine progress in critical areas of socio-economic development.

Kindly answer each question in terms of the indicators proposed. Additional indicators considered appropriate may be used. Kindly document the data sources for verifying your answers. For quantitative indicators, please enter the value of the indicator. For qualitative indicators please provide a brief, clear summary statement. For both, kindly provide any elaboration considered necessary and references to the data sources.

Please answer the first question for each of the standards and codes listed. Please feel free to add standards or codes that are not included here as the list is not exhaustive.
